Welcome to our February update

Site Progress

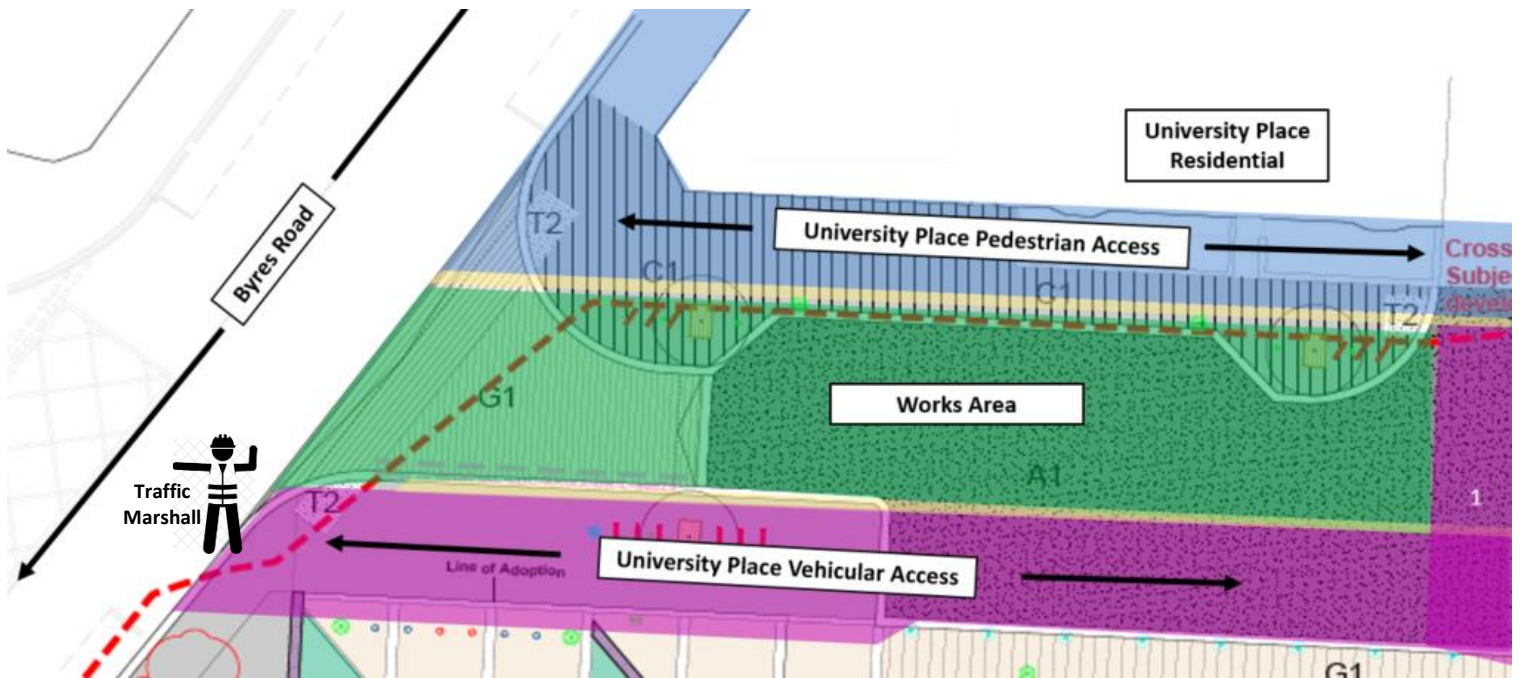

- The James McCune Smith Learning Hub project has completed and the University of Glasgow are now undertaking their own fit out works.
- The remaining works at the Boyd Orr Building will finish in the next 6 weeks.
- Demolition of the Gardiner Institute on Church St continues. Soft strip works are progressing inside the Pontecorvo Building, at the corner of Church St and Dumbarton Road, ahead of structural demolition commencing in February.
- There will be drainage works this weekend at University Place. See overleaf for details. If you have any issues relating to these works please contact security on 07535879564,

University Place Weekend Working

We will be undertaking essential drainage works to University Place this weekend (30th & 31st January).

Access to University Place and Sutherland Lane will be maintained at all times with traffic marshalls in place to assist.

Project News

The Research Hub building has been officially named the ARC (Advanced Research Centre).

The ARC will be the creative and collaborative heart of research at the University, with the name symbolic of the building's goals to bridge the boundaries between research, cross subject collaboration and true societal impact. The ground floor of the ARC will be open to the general public to showcase the excitement and relevance of the University's research.

The project is due to complete in Autumn 2021 and open in Spring 2022
